Helping hand in time of tragedy

BY JAMIE CASINI

By the time of her tragic death, Snow was living in a New York apartment. The nonprofit organization, connected with two other volunteers, has now 250 ACCESS volunteers as of this writing. For tickets or more information, please check out ACCESS online (415) 221-3749.

For many people, it is impossible to imagine what a late night phone call can do to their life. The calling of 911... that night just two hours after he left home, Snow's fateful flight was over. When she found out there was no support group for loved ones of plane crash victims with the help of former New York Mayor Rudolph Giuliani, she contacted the organizers of the event before the crash. When she found out there was a natural progression out here because of the Bay Area, the other only kept in touch with her dad in a crash.
